DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The claims recite a bypass line assembly comprising a bypass line, a bypass valve (25) and a manual throttle valve (23). The specification, however, does not provide adequate support for the disclosure of the bypass line. The line containing the valve and manual throttle valve is readable as the outlet for the exiting high-pressured gas and liquid from the condenser (13). The specification does not disclose a main line for the gas and liquid from the condenser such that the conduit containing the valve (25) and the throttle valve could be a "bypass line." It is noted that the conduit parallel to the valve (15) entering the bottom of the tank (13) is readable as an inlet for the refrigerant entering the condenser.

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Art Unit: 3753

Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. A main line is not recited in the claims. Therefore, the claims are readable as a conduit containing the valve and manual throttle valve in series. The recitation of "said gas flow means" in claim 2 lacks antecedent basis.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1-3 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Fitzgerald (U.S. Patent no. 4,301,731). The patent to Fitzgerald discloses a conduit (36) for transporting gas in a first direction, the supply line (36) including a first valve and a second manual valve (40) located upstream from the first valve. The manual valve (40) includes a pressure release passage, col. 5, lines 48-65.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 4 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Fitzgerald. It would have been an obvious design expedient to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to have modified the manual valve of Fitzgerald to have the hole providing the pressure release function formed with a diameter between 0.06 inches and 0.185 inches. The determination of an optimum diameter being 0.125 inches would have been within the routine skill of one of ordinary skill in the art.
